raordinary ways of incorporating leaf into their creations, whether through the practice of sacred Iconography or the gilding of Buddhas or as gold and silver grounds for hyper-realistic pop-surrealistic paintings, the options of using the techniques and materials for gilding seem limitless.

Gum Ammoniac, a gum-resin from the herb Dorema Ammoniacum

During the last five years of offering the class Gilding for Works of Art...a Study for Fine Artists, I have had the privilege of meeting an extraordinary group of artists seeking to grow their skills in gilding and to discover new realms of working with the beauty and delicacy of gold leaf while also discovering other metal leaves to augment their works of art such as Palladium, Caplain, and Moon Gold.

To help further our understanding of good practices and gilding principles while discovering various techniques and perhaps somewhat exotic materials to work and experiment with, I am introducing this new column to the Gilding Arts Newsletter. It's here where we'll discuss the methods of Traditional Water Gilding for use on painted panels and Mordant Gilding which extends to works of art on canvas, paper, fabric, and other surf aces. We will address some of the pressing questions that many have: Should I gild first or paint first? Should I begin by using the imitation leaf? How do I handle this leaf that blows away everytime I breathe??! :)

I also encourage those of you with questions of working with gold or silver leaf as an element of your artwork to email me your questions so I can then respond within the newsletter for the benefit of all. Although time may not allow for personal responses I will attempt to answer, or find the answer, to your questions and include your observations where applicable. (The best address to email me is charles.studio@usa.net).

In the upcoming newsletter we'll begin by looking at the use of gold leaf in the works of art of the Oil Painter: the options, pitfalls, and tips. (

Good timing for sending in those questions!).

Meanwhile, there are several locations for study coming up both this Summer and Fall which you'll see below. I'm also excited about sharing some different mordants for you to experiment with such as gum ammoniac, garlic, and PVA glue (yes, Elmer's!) - from the medieval to the contemporary.

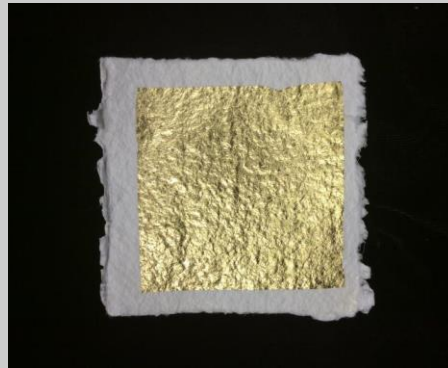

See you in the next issue...or class (or both!).

Happy fourth day of Summer!

Peace, health, and clarity,

Charles
